Today – Dry conditions expected to start the round. There is a cluster of showers to the southwest, that if they can hold together, would move through around 9-10am. However, these are weakening and even if they impact us would have very low chances for lightning. In the afternoon, still a chance for some pop-up showers or storms, primarily between 2-6pm. These would be short-lived if they occur but will have chances for lightning. Conditions dry out after 6pm for the rest of the evening. Temps will push into the upper 70s today with winds variable to northeast and remaining light.

Sunrise: 6:29am / Sunset: 8:30pm | Additional Rainfall: Trace-0.15", up to 0.30" possible.
