Monday and Tuesday – The pattern for Monday and Tuesday is fairly similar with mostly sunny to partly cloudy skies in the morning and early afternoon. Around 4pm each day a sea breeze may develop and move in-land. This may lead to scattered thunderstorms in the area. Winds will be steady from the east to southeast at 6-12mph with a few gusts to 20mph on Monday and near 15mph on Tuesday. As the sea breeze and possible thunderstorms move in, winds may shift to the south or southwest.

Extended forecast – Wednesday is expected to remain dry with partly cloudy skies and the same easterly winds. The sea breeze pattern may return Thursday through the weekend. The mornings will remain mostly sunny, but between 2-4pm each afternoon if a sea breeze develops, it may bring thunderstorms to the area. Winds will remain from the east-southeast with wind gusts up to 20mph. Temperatures each afternoon will rise into the upper 80s.
