Rest of Today – Isolated showers will remain possible through the mid to late afternoon as a cold front moves through the area late in the day. The cloudy conditions will begin to break up allowing for some peeks of sunshine as we go through the rest of the day. Otherwise, skies will clear this evening into the overnight with breezy and much cooler air overspreading the region. Temperatures will likely drop into the upper 40s to around 50 degrees by daybreak Thursday.

Extended forecast – No changes to the extended forecast as sunny, breezy and much cooler conditions can be expected Thursday and Friday with lows in the 40s and highs in the low to mid 60s. The breeze is expected to calm down this weekend, but temperatures will remain cool. Despite the sunny skies, temperatures will only warm into the low 60s Saturday and into the upper 60s Sunday. After another cool start, temperatures will begin to moderate Monday with highs returning to the low 70s.
